

The Trust aims to fund nursing staff to provide respite care and end-of-life palliative care for Island residents who choose to remain at home in their last days; in effect, to provide a 'Hospice at Home' service. Nursing care and support is given for individual patients, families, friends and carers.

Research suggests that more and more people prefer to spend their last days with the dignity and comfort that comes from being in their own homes. The Hospice at Home 'Diana' nurses, which the Trust helps fund, can play a key part in making this possible.
